

FOUR INCHES RAIN FALLS IN 30 HOURS

ALL RECORDS SMASHED HERE, REPORT COTTAGES DAMAGED IN STOUTSVILLE CAMP GROUNDS

Rains Friday Evening, Saturday Morning, Swell County Total

ENDS DROUTH HERE

Columbus Record For Steady Fall Smashed.

All existing records for rainfall have been shattered in Circleville since 6 a. m. Friday when, according to Dr. H. R. Clarke, veteran weather observer, 4.02 inches of rainfall have been recorded on the government's thermometer.

The greatest amount of this rain fell between 4 and 6 a. m. Friday when 1.64 inches came from the clouds. Friday evening, just 12 hours after the previous rain, 1.14 inches fell, and from shortly after 8 a. m. until noon 1.24 additional inches of rainfall were recorded.

The total makes more than four inches of rain in 30 hours and practically eliminates any chance of a drouth in Pickaway-co this summer. Before the rain early Friday corn and other crops were badly in need of moisture because the earth's supply had been exhausted. That rain helped greatly and farmers were more than satisfied with the results obtainable. Then came Friday evening's downpour, and again Saturday's rain, which was probably as beneficial, if not more so, than the previous rain.

Friday night's rain did some damage in the county, especially in the Stoutsville vicinity where a number of cottages at the camp ground were damaged by falling trees. The rain in that section was accompanied by a severe windstorm with the result that many trees were felled. It also was reported that damage was done at the canning factory in Stoutsville.

Corn was blown down in some sections, although general reports from the several corners of the county, reported the crop down in only a few sections. The Stoutsville district was probably harder hit in this respect than the other sections.

The heavy downpour which fell here and in the north central part of the state were having a lot to do with the sudden rise of the Scioto river and other streams. The Scioto was up considerably this morning, as also were a number of smaller streams including Darby and Deer Creek and Hargus.

Central Ohio was pelted with the heaviest rainfall for one day, Friday since 1897. Nearly two inches of rainfall fell in Columbus while off winds blew down telephone lines, disrupting power and light service. Traffic was stalled in miniature floods.

Damages amounting to several thousands of dollars were reported done in various sections of the state by the terrific storms. Corn and oats crops were laid low by storms near New Philadelphia, Port Washington and Lock 17 in Tuscarawas county.

Two barns were destroyed near Tiffin as lightning and rain flattened corn crops. Marion and Wooster were severely pelted by hail and rain.

The storm, however, broke an almost insufferable heat wave, sending mercury from peaks of 99 and 100 degrees to more comfortable temperatures around 70's. Weather forecasters promised even more relief from additional showers today.

Among the top temperatures yesterday were Tiffin, 100 — two degrees under the all-time July mark established in 1887; Toledo, 95; Cleveland and Dayton, 95 each; Youngstown and Cincinnati 98 each; Akron 97.

TRADE EMPLOYMENT SHOWING INCREASE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Employment in the building trades is increasing, a report of the bureau of labor statistics issued today indicated. The report showed that 3,423 identical firms in the 20 cities covered had a combined employment for a pay period ending June 15, of 49,846 men as compared with 48,264 in May. This is an increase of 2.7 per cent.

The same firms, the report said, had a combined pay roll total of $1,485,426 for June as compared with $1,454,934 in May, or an increase of 2.1 per cent.

At Least 12 Lives Taken By Electrical Storms, Ohio Survey Shows

HEAT WAVE BROKEN

Several Drownings Reported in Ohio.

The latest heat wave broke with the crash of thunder and lightning that took at least twelve lives, according to tabulations made today.

Four were killed by lightning in Ohio as a violent wind and electric storm ended two days of extreme temperatures. The victims were Wade Marsh, 26, Curtice; Daniel Rush, 56, Holmes-co; William Frisoe, 15, and James Crawford, 13, East Loudenville. Frisoe was struck at a Boy Scout camp and the others on various farms.

Western Pennsylvania also had a toll of four lives taken by the sudden death of lightning. Mrs. Ohe Luman, 51 and her son, Earl 33, were killed in a potato patch near Ryndman; T. D. Mark, 35, Pittsburgh died when his steel-shafted golf club was struck and Dennis J. Petras, 31, was killed under a tree near Elarsville.

Forty-three were whipped down by a wind in Johnson City, Tenn., and two were killed and eight injured as a crowd attending a road opening had sought shelter in the grove. Gov. Horton and other state officials had just left.

Windsor, Ont., two girls were killed by lightning.

The Goodyear blimp, Puritan, attending the Cherry festival at Traverse City, Mich., was blown from its moorings and damaged but the crew was uninjured as gas valves were opened for descent of the dirigible.

Showers broke Chicago's heat sending the mercury from its highest at 99 to a comfortable 81 and W. P. Day, forecaster, promised cooler weather today and tomorrow.

Eight persons died from heat prostration yesterday and a ninth was reported drowned.

Other parts of the middle west also reported deaths but only a fraction of the number that died in the June hot spell. Twelve had died since Thursday in Ohio, ten in Wisconsin, thirteen in Minnesota and North Dakota, according to news dispatches.

Wisconsin had a maximum of 105 degrees at Sheboygan and South Bend led Indiana with 103 with several cities in these states and Illinois registering 100.

HALL SEEKING HAWK'S MARK

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., July 18.—James Goodwin Hall, New York aviator, hopped off at 5:38 o'clock this morning on a non-stop flight to Havana. He hopes to reach the Cuban capital in less than nine hours, breaking the record of Captain Frank M. Hawks.

The aviator planned to fly down the Atlantic seaboard.

Weather bureau forecasters said it was raining off the Chesapeake bay region and cloudy and foggy farther down the coast.

The distance from New York to Havana is 1,600 miles. Hall will fly over Camden, N. J., Washington, D. C., Charleston, Jacksonville and Miami.

Hall's plane has a 550-horsepower motor and is capable of top speed of 250 miles an hour.

For Job Renick did as fine a piece of work as has ever been found in his care of the Mt. Sterling cemetery. It is a thing of beauty and its perfect condition has earned the sorrow of many a person who has watched the grave claim the body of some loved one.

MOORE TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Attorney Leist is Called into Case too Late to Investigate Charge

After nearly two hours of discussion among attorneys, the trial of John Moore, S. Scioto-st., arrested on a charge of transporting and possessing intoxicating liquor was continued Saturday in probate court until Thursday at 9 a. m., by Judge E. A. Brown.

The case had been scheduled to be heard at 9 a. m., Saturday following Moore's plea of not guilty to the charge when arraigned on Wednesday.

The cause for continuance and delay of the case came when C. A. Leist was called in the case to assist Richard Simkins as counsel for the defendant. Mr. Leist stated that he had been called into the case too late to prepare and investigate the charge.

Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Crist opposed the continuance.

FATE OF REICH PUT IN HANDS OF STATESMEN

Bruening and Curtius Meet With Laval and Briand in Paris

WORLD IS WATCHING

Ministers to Meet in London Monday Evening

PARIS, July 18.—The future status of continental Europe was placed in the hands of a little group of statesmen today when Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius of Germany arrived to talk over the grave economic crisis threatening the Reich.

Their arrival marked the inception of a conference heralded as the most important international convocation since the statesmen of the world gathered in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles in 1919 to reshuffle the map of Europe at the conclusion of the greatest war in history.

Approximately 10,000 persons, easily comprising one of the largest crowds ever to turn out, in Paris to welcome foreign emissaries, were at the Gare de L'Est when the taciturn, sober-faced German chancellor and his aide disembarked from their train.

CROWD PRESENT

Premier Pierre Laval and Aristide Briand, shaggy veteran of France's foreign office, headed the official committee of welcome. While a heavy cordon of police held back the crowds, the visiting Germans were escorted along the station platform through lines of police, palms and ferns to waiting motor cars.

Beneath red velvet draperies at the entrance of the station, the statesmen paused a moment as photographers snapped pictures and the curious crowd strained for a glimpse of the four men whose deliberations over the week - end may decide the future of Germany.

Without any great formality, the Germans were ushered into limousines and whisked to their hotels. A brief conference was scheduled at the ministry of the interior before American and British representatives were called in for advice and opinions.

The primary subject for discussion was the participation of France in extension of credits to disaster. It was expected that before many hours had passed some official announcement would be made concerning the political conditions demanded by France before she pours into Germany the gold that is needed to save the nation from destruction.

ASSEMBLE MONDAY

Upon the success of this meeting hinged the fate of the extraordinary conference of ministers called by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald to assemble in London Monday evening. France has not yet accepted Britain's invitation to attend. Her acceptance is contingent upon the progress made over the week-end in the conferences with the German officials.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, chief American delegate, and Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, awaited the call from Premier Laval to extend the scope of the conference into a four-power affair and thus endow it with an importance unexcelled by an international meeting since Versailles.

FORMER QUEEN IS HEADING TO EXILE

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 16.—Former Queen Helen of Rumania today was speeding to wards London on the Orient Express. Surrounded by friends and with tears in her eyes, the unhappy princess left Bucharest last night.

From the quantity of baggage it was evident that the former Queen planned a long stay abroad. She may never return to Rumania except for periodic short visits to her son, Crown Prince Michael.

Every member of the Rumanian royal family with the exception of Michael and King Carol were present at the station when the princess departed. Former King George of Greece boarded the train with the intention of accompanying his sister on part of her journey.

The trip to Camp Perry will be made in trucks.

Murderess Now Awaits "Chair"

COLUMBUS, O., July 18.—Maud Lowther, the Ashtabula-co murderess, began her death watch today.

The first woman the state of Ohio has ever sentenced to the electric chair awakened this morning in a new home -- on the fifth floor of the central police station.

All she has to do in jail is to wait -- wait until Oct. 2, when she is sentenced to die for the murder of Mrs. Tibby Smith, wife of her lover -- but she was up early this morning, as though she faced a busy day.

It wasn't true that she couldn't sleep, Mrs. William Schultz, the night guard, said. Mrs. Lowther "slept fine," she said she "felt fine." And she even ate a big breakfast.

In her conversation with Mrs. Schultz, the part-Indian girl carefully avoided the subject of the impending electrocution. It was a conversation of small talk, about the hard rain last night, how much good it would do the crops.

back in Ashtabula-co and what she would wear today.

Lacking penitentiary garb for its women prisoners, the state decided to allow Mrs. Lowther to wear what she chooses. She wore a cheap cotton print dress on her trip to Columbus from the county jail at Jefferson yesterday, and brought several other dresses with her.

From her cell in the county jail today Mrs. Lowther could not see the penitentiary, where Tibby Smith also is awaiting execution. She was near him yesterday, for a few minutes, when she visited the penitentiary offices, but did not see him.

Questions put to her at the penitentiary she answered uninterestingly. No she did not have any drugs concealed about her. No she did not have any fire arms in her possession. She straightened back her hair to be photographed, and submitted to the finger-printing without saying anything.

SHOWS NO EMOTION

Mrs. Lowther, a former West Virginia hill girl, displayed only little emotion at any time yesterday and that was when she said goodbye to Sheriff and Mrs. C. H. Blanche of Jefferson-co.

"You've been awfully good," she said. She had been under their care for a year.

Mrs. Lowther, a 23-year-old waitress was convicted of shooting Mrs. Smith along a county road. Mrs. Smith was an obstacle in her love affair with Smith which the two decided to remove by murder.

Mrs. James is a resident in various houses of ill repute, and later the policeman "kept woman" according to her own testimony, was indicted for the shooting after the jury deliberated for most four hours.

The soul of man is like the soil. It needs rain. It must be fed.

What a difference rain makes in the growth of the crops. Without the rain the soil becomes parched and cracks. The wells and streams go dry.

Long ago a psalmist said, "My soul thirsteth after Thee." Jesus said, "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink."

"The church aims to help you satisfy your soul thirst. You can go to other wells but they will not satisfy. The people who love the church will bear their testimony to its helpfulness here. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

Discussion on S.S. Lesson

1. Why is social services a natural expression of Christianity?

2. Why is there such great power in the doctrine of the resurrection?

3. Why should the church share more largely in the distribution of funds which is usually done through social agencies?

4. If all church members should devote themselves and their possessions to the purpose of bringing in the kingdom of God, what would be the result in our modern industrial order?

5. In what sense does the cheerful giver reap bountifully?

6. Why was there such poverty in the church at Jerusalem as to call for financial aid in which St. Paul was so interested?

Clericus says, "Human nature is the soil out of which the form of society grows and it will do little good to change the form as long as this soil remains unchanged. Weeds mowed down and their roots left in the ground will soon grow up again."

Lesson Prayer "Help us to see and feel human needs to the point of exercising our influence and using our possessions in binging relief. May we prove by our works that we possess the spirit of our Lord."

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

Religion Needed to Complete Life

Professor H. H. Horne of Harvard says, "If religious experience is a scientific fact, if this experience reasonably suggests an objective reality corresponding to it, then human life is not complete without religion."

"To live completely is to live in adjustment to all one's world the physical, the social, the vocational, the intellectual, the emotional, the moral and the unification of all these, which is spiritual. Complete living is manifold. Man needs religion to round out a complete life for himself."

Complete living does not happen; a program is needed and the church offers it. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY.

HOW TO DEVELOP CHRISTIAN PERSONALITY?

To have a Christian personality, one needs an experience which partakes in nature the experience of Christ while on earth. Here is where a study of his life has a personal value. Foremost, probably was Christ's God-consciousness, his sense of immediate communion with God, and his experiences of God as a living father; it is to be remembered that the immediate experience of God comes through worship. The church should seek through worship to lead every individual, from the youngest babe to the most venerable saint, into an experience of direct communion with God in terms of the experience background of each. Perhaps the most characteristic things about Jesus was that "he went about doing good." Jesus love of companionship was one of the marked traits of his personality. In accounting for the experiences which contributed to his personality we must count fellowship upon the fine and lofty plane to which it was inevitably pitched in his presence. The church's program really becomes a curriculum of Christ-like experiences. These must be so attractive in themselves, or motives prompting the choice of them be so developed that these experiences will be chosen and purposely carried out by the church's constituency.

HOW TO DEVELOP CHRISTIAN PERSONALITY?

To have a Christian personality, one needs an experience which partakes in nature the experience of Christ while on earth. Here is where a study of his life has a personal value. Foremost, probably was Christ's God-consciousness, his sense of immediate communion with God, and his experiences of God as a living father; it is to be remembered that the immediate experience of God comes through worship. The church should seek through worship to lead every individual, from the youngest babe to the most venerable saint, into an experience of direct communion with God in terms of the experience background of each. Perhaps the most characteristic things about Jesus was that "he went about doing good." Jesus love of companionship was one of the marked traits of his personality. those forming society have human limitations. At best human judgment is often fallible; the only safe way is to proceed with Christian principles and with the Christian spirit.

Vs. 2, 3. "And the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them and said, It is not fit that we should forsake the word of God and serve tables. Look ye out therefore, brethren, from among you seven men of good report, full of the Spirit and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business." Here may be deduced practical principles for a church organization; the minister must be allowed time for communion with God as stated in the following verse and time to make the necessary preparation for effective preaching; the minister should be relieved of all church work that can be done by members of the church.

V. 1. "For as touching the ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you." program of social service making the dire need of the Christian church at Jerusalem his appeal; of course the church at Corinth would give as he expressed his confidence in the fact that they too had the Christian spirit and therefore it was superfluous to write them. However he does not want to see failure in their doing less than their best and he quotes the good examples of other churches as stated in the following verse.

V. 2. "But I have sent the brethren, that our glorying on your behalf may not be made void in this respect." It is personal work that counts in all affairs even in church finances.

V. 4. "Lest by any means, if there come any with me from Macedonia and find you unprepared, we (that we say not ye) should be put to shame in this confidence. The courteous parenthesis credits shame if his confidence is shown to have been misplaced.

V. 5. "That the same might be ready as a matter of bounty and their offerings to be a free gift not of extortion." He wanted and not something which had been wrung from them and yet he sent brethren before him to stir up the spirit of giving freely. Appeals are necessary that the free gifts may be large enough to have meaning to the giver and the cause.

Vs. 6, 7. "But this I say, He that soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap bountifully. God loveth a cheerful giver."

are shared; in cheerful giving the Joy comes only when blessings love of God flows more freely; so cheerful givers are blessed when blessing others.

BOOK REVIEW
TEACHING PRIMARIES IN THE CHURCH SCHOOL by Smith. The Methodist Book Concern, is a guide and source book outlined and approved by the International Council of Religious Education. It has been designed to set forth a high standard in methods and at the same time present them in a simply, practical way to the average church school worker.

WOMAN "WEATHER MAN"
ANNISTON, Ala.—Mrs. O. C. Miller has assumed the duties of meteorologist at the Anniston weather bureau, succeeding R. G. Dean, who has been retired after a long period of service in the Department of Agriculture. She is the first woman "weather man" in Anniston.

CANE, FITTED, LATEST STYLE
SAN FRANCISCO—One more thing for those who go in for "last cries" to worry about. A walking stick for ladies now carries a vanity case in the handle. The handle has a mirror, rouge, lipstick and other accessories concealed. A spring releases a tiny door in the top of the cane, and milady begins her art.

DEMAND FOR OLD FEWS
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Much demand is being made for the old pews which have been removed from historic Appleton Chapel, at Harvard University, the majority of which are being disposed of by sale. The new University Club under construction in Pittsburgh is said to have applied for the weathervane which has swung above the chapel since its construction in 1858.

BOY GIVES 'GATOR TO ZOO'
DETROIT—Belle Isle Zoo here has a new exhibit in a foot-long baby alligator because nine-year old Edward Tann's mother "didn't like it so much." Edward became owner of the 'gator when it developed a taste for the fingers of Donald Campbell, Edward's chum, who had received it from a friend in Florida. When his mother objected to the reptile, Edward said he "picked it up by the tail, put it in a tin-can and took it to Belle Isle."

BUSY BEE'S BANNER YEAR
OTTAWA, Can.—The total production of honey in Canada in 1930 was 31,169,683 pounds, an increase over the 1928 output. Canada exported 1,749,035 pounds of honey to the British Isles, United States and several European countries last year. The British Isles took the largest quantity, 1,292,082 pounds. Only 60,821 pounds of honey were imported into Canada in 1930.

"CO-EDS" AT HARVARD
CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—For the first time in the history of the university, Harvard yard has gone feminine. But it is only for the six-week session of summer school. About 1500 students have enrolled which figure includes the summer school proper, undergraduates returning for additional work and students of the physical educational department.

Mr. Jockmus died July 1, or just a day after Rev. Adolf Franz, rector of the German Congregational Church, resigned and that clergyman, a friend of Mr. Jockmus, lost his $1,000 a day.

EDST BARRED ON CLOCK
TORRINGTON, Conn.—Ben Henry Smith, music dealer, told a fellow townsman he wasn't going to have anyone tell him how his public clock should be set, but Smith changed his mind when Prosecutor Wall issued a warrant charging violation of a state law against displaying other than standard time on such a clock. Smith went to court and promised to change the clock from daylight time to standard, and the charge was nolle. A fine of $100 is provided for violations, and the law has been upheld by the supreme court of the state.

Socko for You, Mickey!

Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, is shown getting in a few advance wallops for his heavyweight bout with Mickey Walker at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., July 22. Jack has put in some strenuous days at his training camp in Pompton Lake, N. J., for the encounter with Mickey. The victor may meet Schmeling for the title.

SHARKEY-WALKER FIGHT GATE MAY SURPASS SCHMELING BOUT

Jimmy Johnston Predicts 'Milk Fund' Gate will Turn $400,000 —Sharkey Tickled That He May be Better Drawing Card Than Champion

BY LES CONKLIN NEW YORK, July 18.—James (Jabbering) Johnston, who will promote the Jack Sharkey-Mickey Walker bout in Brooklyn next Wednesday in conjunction with the milk fund, predicted today that the receipts would exceed the $339,000 "gate" at the Schmeling-Stribling championship bout in Cleveland two weeks ago.

The advance sale totaled something like $70,000 this morning Johnson estimated, that the gate would be "upwards of $300,000." The winner will receive thirty per cent of the net and the loser twenty per cent.

"If the receipts come to expectations, the winner will receive more for his end than Schmeling got for defending his title against Stribling," observed the dapper James, "when you consider that there will be no federal tax on the show and that the training expenses will be less than the were for the title fight."

"Schmeling received $106,000 for defending his title. The government collected $17,000, training expenses must have set him back about $10,000, his manager got one third. And Germany put the slug on him for another chunk as soon as he landed in the old country. I guess Maxie didn't have so much left when all the boys in the line-up got through putting the razor blade on him."

Sharkey himself, in covering with the writer recently, predicted he would get a larger purse than Schmeling drew down for fighting Stribling. The sailor derived immense satisfaction from the thought, figuring that such a development would show him to be a better drawing card than the champion.

While ultra-conservatives estimate the Sharkey-Walker gate at $200,000, most observers believe it will be the largest since the depression set in. Some of Johnston's associates are even whispering of a sellout, which would mean an attendance of 60,000 and a gate of nearly half a million.

The writer saw a sheaf of 100 requests for working press seats at Johnston's office last night. Cash for tickets has been pouring in from cities throughout the east, notably Boston, and from scores of small towns in New Jersey and Pennsylvania that the promoters didn't know were on the map.

Mayor Anton Cermak is coming from Chicago with 150 friends. Representatives of blue-blooded Newport society at the fight will include Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt. A request for six tickets came from as far west as Whitefish, Montana.

So it would not be surprising if the show outdraws the Schmeling-Stribling affair, which, between you and the mother in law and the lamp post, set Madison Square garden back to the tune of $143,000.

FERRELL GIVES YANKS THREE HITS, SMACKS HOMER TO WIN

Ruth's Home Run is Only Yankee Run in Great Battle; Grove Wins 18th Game for Athletics over Detroit; Giants Pass Cubs in National Race as St. Louis Loses

NEW YORK, July 18.—Some folks, including great baseball players, who argue Wesley Ferrell of the Cleveland Indians is as good a pitcher as the peerless Lefty Grove of the Athletics, found ham and eggs to support their claims today.

Ferrell, a star right hander whose record would be better with a more consistent club, beat the Yankees single-handed yesterday, out pitching Herb Pennock and matching blow for blow with no less than Babe Ruth.

Wesley limited the Yanks to three hits and when one of them turned out to be homer No. 23 by the great hitter and husband, Ferrell proceeded to circuit drive himself. The whack won the ball game, 2 to 1, and gave the Indians the deciding tilt in the five games series.

Grove won his tenth straight and his nineteenth game of the season, dropping Detroit, 6 to 3. The A's smashed the Tiger four to one in the series.

Ethan Allen did a modern ticonderoga in the seventh and the Giants finally beat the Cubs, moving up again into second place in the national ding dong. Ethan hit a single in the seventh to score 2 runs which rolled it off for New York, 7 to 6.

The Robins showed power in winning, 4 to 1, over St. Louis, Stephen-evening the series. Lefty O'Doul, returned in all his glory, poked four hits, giving him a record of 12 blasts in 16 times at bat in the Cardinal series.

Crowder was nothing for a radio announcer to get excited about, but four White Sox pitchers were much worse and Washington spanked the Chicago Sox, 12 to 7.

The Senators pocketed a win. Lucas took the role of Wesley Ferrell and on top of beating the Braves of Boston to 5-0, hit a double and single in four trips up, to triumph for the City Red 5 to 0.

Big Jim Elliott was right twice in a week, again confounding the Pirates for Philadelphia, 4 to 1. He gave only four safeties. Kress was the victim.

Kress made a homer and Gooden and Schulte each got two hits and the Browns of St. Louis took the fourth in the five-games series from Boston's rubbery hose, 6 to 0.

ONLY TEN YEARS AGO

Only ten years ago life on the farm meant an almost primitive existence. It was practically all work—hard work—and very little play.

Today, the widespread distribution of modern tools, clothes, washing machines and radios make pleasant and profitable the hours that used to be tedious and difficult.

Advertising has had its share in bringing about this transformation. It spreads before the farmer every day, every week, every month, a whole printed market-place from which, at his leisure, he may select those things which he desires, and which his budget will permit. Thus advertising has found more customers for the manufacturer, and more necessities and comforts of life for the rural buyer.

This is but one phase of advertising's service to the nation. Read the advertisements. It saves time and money. And it continually informs you of many conveniences and comforts that you might otherwise miss!

Bigger and Heavier Mail

DEFICITS, usually most annoying, can be useful. In government they usually mean higher taxes or curtailed public service, but even in public affairs a deficit can be benevolent.
Operation of the parcels post branch of the postal service at a loss running into the millions is responsible for the extension of the weight and bulk limits on parcel post matter. Business and individual users will benefit.
The parcels post limitation of 84 inches in combined length and width, and weight limit of 50 pounds for shipments beyond a 300 mile radius, prevented the shipment by parcels post of many bulky but comparatively light-weight packages which the service could have earned at a profit. The new limits of 100 inches and 70 pounds in all zones open this transportation service to a large class of shipments to the mutual benefit of both the shippers and the postoffice department.

In 1926 the postal deficit attributable to parcel post was a little less than three millions. Three years later it was 20 millions, which was cut the following year to 15 millions. By the simple expedient of extending the service to larger and heavier packages the department expected to add five millions to its revenue the first year.

Perhaps by a little more hunting the experts of the department can find more ways of improving and enlarging the service to its own financial advantage.

Coats and 90 in the Shade

WHY IS IT REQUIRED in summer time that a gentleman wear his coat everywhere except on the golf links or tennis court or in the swimming pool? Dignity demands it, some say. Also, it has always been the mark of a gentleman to wear a coat, no matter how ridiculous he looks mopping his face and brow or fanning himself violently with straw hat or newspaper.

Sport costumes have emancipated women so far as summer apparel is concerned. Short sleeves, no collars, light and airy materials, loose-fitting, straight line costumes, all help the female of the species, to be flapper or dignified matron, to look cool and comfortable in the eyes of sweltering man.
Why do not the men declare a little independence in this matter? Returning suspenders are to be worn beneath the shirt, so that dignity need not be sacrificed when the coat is removed. As an office uniform the coatless outfit should make for greater comfort, increased efficiency and smoother tempers. Why not discard the coat except when formality or comfort demand its use?

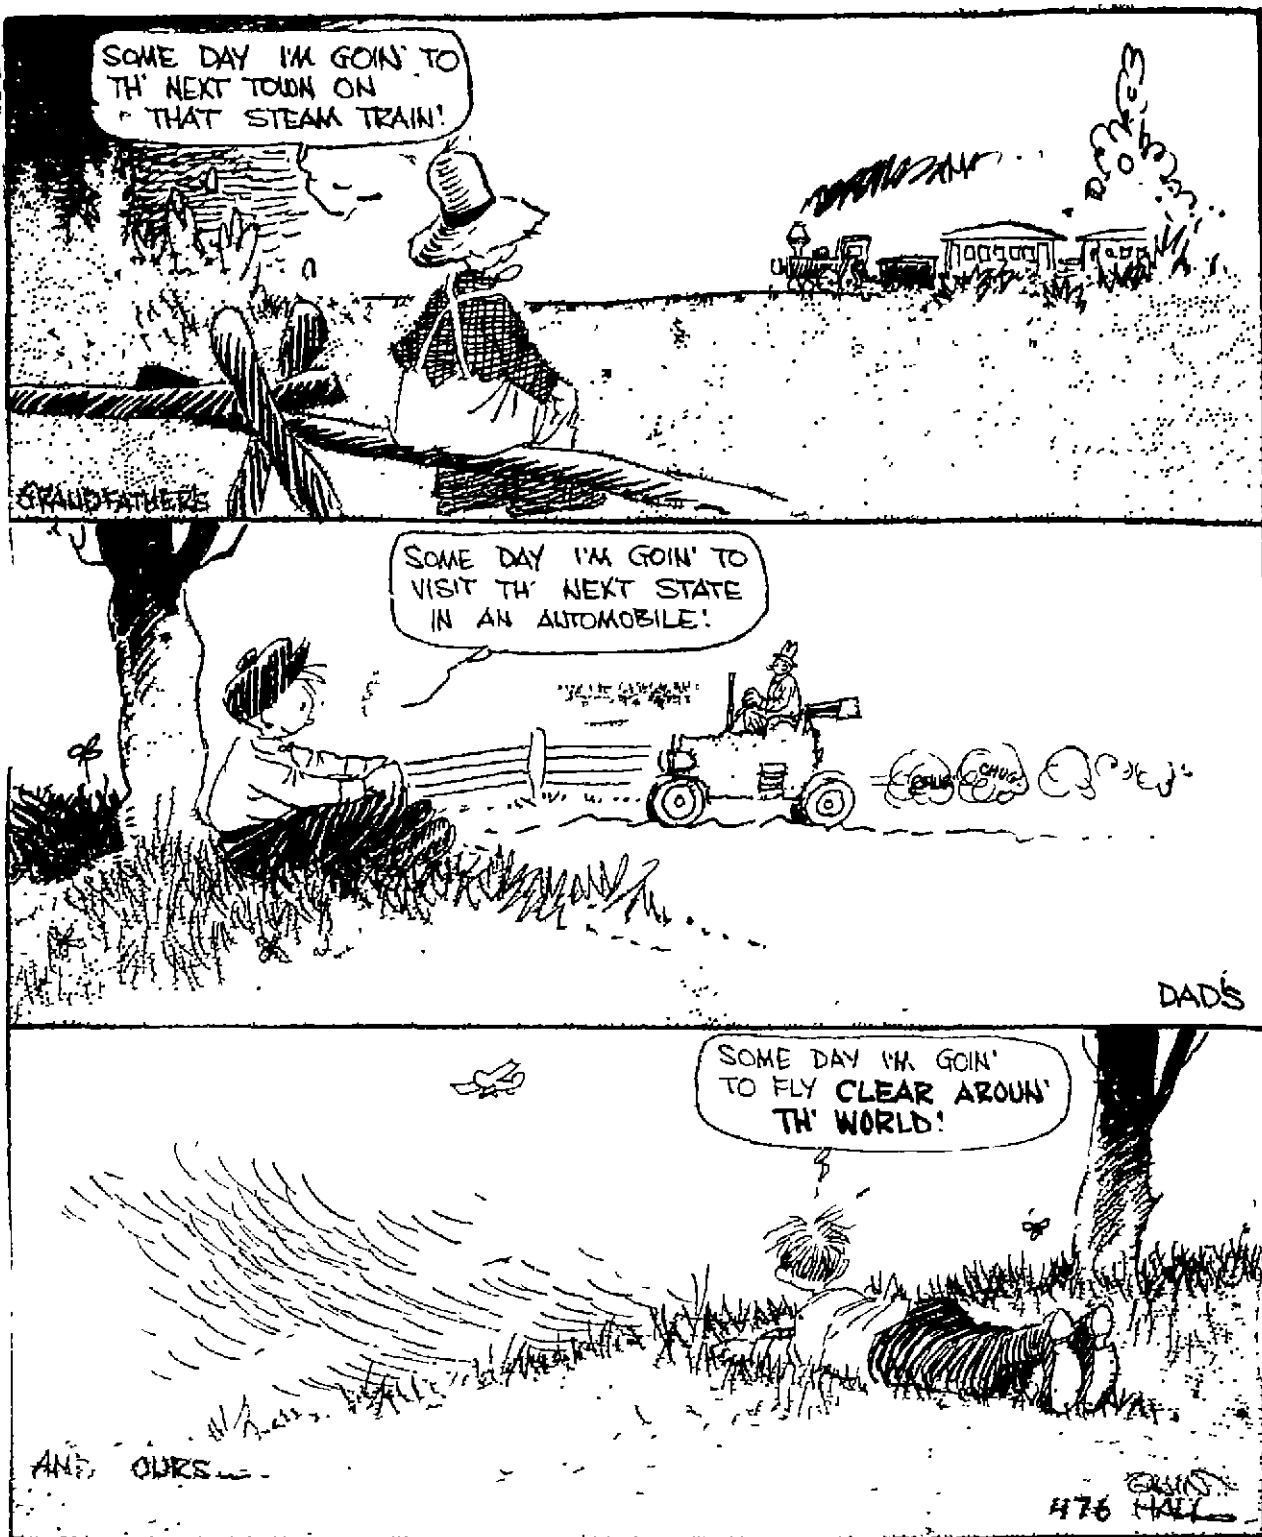

Although man never tires of bantering the fickle sex for being the slave of fashion, there are good reasons for suspecting that men folk would cast aside the coat for the sake of comfort if it were not unfashionable. Husbands give their wives for being too conventional and melt under a heavy coat merely because it is unconventional to remove it in the presence of others.

Territorial Dispute

IN the early days of colonization of the world there were isolated islands and other out of the way shores which were of no apparent use to any country and so were claimed by none but as empires spread their arms around the world and world trade took in the seven seas these neglected lands assumed a new importance as coaling ports and found other uses, with resultant international complications of serious consequences.

This page in the history of colonization is being repeated today. A nation brings within the lanes of world travel land areas which a few years ago were as useless to man as a submerged island in the Atlantic.
When the barren shores of Greenland within the Arctic Circle possessed no recognized value there came to be had for the taking. But after several polar expeditions and round the world flights had seen them for landing places, Norway and Denmark decide they both want them and have valid claims to them. Denmark claims the whole of the island, Norway, the western part of it, and the United States claims a part of it.

BOYHOOD DREAMS

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN
Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Thrown upon her own resources, Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful and vivacious orphan, applies for a position as companion to a semi-invalid in the palatial home of Mrs. Lorrimer at Westmill, Connecticut. Mrs. Lorrimer explains the ad should have read "male" as the invalid is her son, Travers, shell-shocked in the war. As Mary Lou is about to leave, Travers enters. He seizes her in his arms, calling her "Delight" and "wife." Then he faints when Mary Lou fails to respond to his caresses. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight Harford, whom Travers claims he married in England, in order to help him regain his health. Mary Lou confides in her friend, Larry Mitchell, young newspaper reporter.

CHAPTER XIV.
SHE found stamps, plenty of them, even 5-cent and special deliveries, for Mrs. Lorrimer had not been idle in providing her new "daughter" with everything for convenience and comfort. She stamped and addressed the envelope, and presently Hilda knocked at the door to say that Mrs. Lorrimer expected her for tea. "In the morning room, Miss Delight," said Hilda, without a quiver of her eyelash.
Going downstairs, Mary Lou found herself speculating upon her new name. She thought, ruefully: "It doesn't suit me. I should be blond and willowy and perhaps a little clinging. Mary Lou belongs. Maybe because I've had it so long. But it's up to me to forget it. I've had it. I can't play at being Delight Harford unless I make myself believe I am!" she thought further.
Mrs. Lorrimer evidently thought so too. "No more Mary Lou," she said. "You'll have to get used to the other name. It is necessary, you know. How many lumps, Delight?" asked Mrs. Lorrimer, with perfect gravity.
Mary Lou laughed and then sighed.

Just a Friend
"It is an undertaking," she admitted. "It won't be so hard for you, of course. After all, you didn't know Mary Lou very long or well. But I have known her for 20 years! I wrote Larry and explained everything after I called him up. He'll go down and get my things for me," she went on, and gave the mail to her maid.
"I'll have it sent right to the post-office," said Mrs. Lorrimer. "Does this engaging young man—I am sure he is, from your evident description—does he communicate things?"
"Complete," things," asked Mary Lou blankly.
"I mean, are you engaged? You must forget me, my dear, I don't mean to be personal or curious. But we have to understand one another. For if you are, it may be difficult to be my guest. Then, Travers, I consider, I had forgotten about this Mr. Mitchell, but you said he was a friend and taking him into your confidence. And I wonder if any young man would consent to his fiancée play such a role as you have undertaken."

think that Mr. Lorrimer will like him and I'm sure he'd be good for him somehow."
"You can't call him Mr. Lorrimer, Delight," Mrs. Lorrimer reminded her.
While the two women were at tea, Dr. Mathews returned and had himself announced as going directly to his patient. Mrs. Lorrimer sent word by Peter to ask the doctor to join her and Miss Harford when he was through.
So, while the two women talked, Dr. Mathews sat beside Travers, Lorrimer and explained, slowly and clearly, the situation as Travers must be brought to see it. Travers sighed deeply. He felt ill and very let down after his attack; his mind was confused, his emotions disturbed.

A Fresh Start
"I see," he said at last, in the voice from which all vibrant tones were lacking. "She doesn't, of course, care for me any more. I understand."
"I didn't say that," Mathews told him gently. "I said—oh, put yourself in her place, Travers. She was nothing but a youngster when you swept her off her feet after a two weeks' acquaintance. She had, you told me, no very close relatives, was living with cousins in London. There was no one to advise her to wait and be sure. A war-time romance."
"Not to me," Travers assured him.
"How do you know?" asked Mathews shrewdly. "You weren't much more than a kid yourself, as topsy-turvy, emotionally, as she was. You went back to France, and you've not seen her since. You've been ill, your entire perspective distorted. How do you know it would have lasted? Face that, you two have got to learn to know each other again."
"She's my wife!" said Travers stubbornly.
"She is unable to think of herself as your wife. She has believed you dead for years. It is a chance, a pure chance, that she did not remarry. I don't say she forgot you. Travers, but your memory must have faded. I have to be brutal, for her sake and for your own."
"She went on living in London with the people who had taken her when she was first left alone there, after her mother's remarriage," went on Mathews, knowing this much of the story well enough, as Travers himself knew it.
"And when that home was broken up, she came out to America as companion to an elderly woman," this part of the story Mathews had connected himself. "And quite by chance saw your mother's name in the paper and came out to see her in order to discover if, by any chance, she was a relation of yours. Pure coincidence that she came here at all. Picture," said Mathews, rather warningly in his fiction, "the image you had been living all these years—"

"She didn't try to trace me," said Travers, rather than asked the other man. "That proves what you said—forgot and forgotten. And it proves what I said—that she no longer cared."
"She did try to trace you. But she was all some time after you left for France. You wrote her, you told me, one letter on your return to her front. She never received it, nor the letters you were able to write from prison camp. Remember, and from prison camp, remember, you were reported missing," he went on, and Travers nodded. "I was more natural than for her to think that you were dead. Then, I just went on, believing that."

when the war was over, you were sent straight home, still an invalid from your crash, without an opportunity to go to London and find her. You wrote to the old address after your return. She had moved away. Convinced of your death, she did not try to trace you further. Try to think of her instead of yourself. It is impossible for her to begin where you two left off. Impossible! But she is here, under your roof. Your mother has accepted her. But you must try and make the adjustment easy for her. Begin, as I told you, at the beginning, with friendship. Come to know one another. I know it is a difficult situation but a lot of it is up to you. I trust you to see it through—clearly. Honorably."

After a moment Travers held out his hand.
"All right, Doc," he said.
Mathews rose, and stood looking down at him, relieved and hopeful of the success of his arguments. He had, he knew, Lorrimer's word. "Do you want to see her now?" he asked gently.
Lorrimer moved his head on the pillow. He was suddenly very nervous; his hands clenched on the bedclothes.
"I've got to think this out. I've some adjusting to do, myself. He tried to smile. "Thanks a lot, Doc. Sorry I was such an ass as to keep you. I'm a fine wreck of a man," he went on bitterly, "I dream that any girl, after seeing me,"
He broke off. Then he said, very gently, rather pitifully, "Please give her my love."

When Mathews had left him he lay a long time thinking, trying to see, as Mathews had asked, the situation clearly. He understood all the implications. But he didn't want to see her tonight, not all night. He had gotten a grip on himself. He had all been so amazingly sudden. The unexpectedness of it. He'd walked into the room, listless, bored with life, as usual, unhappy and—had seen her. The recognition had been immediate.
Joy and Disappointment
The deep joy and gratitude, the soaring ecstasy which had overwhelmed him had been almost too much to bear. But she'd shrunk from him, looked upon him as if he had been a stranger, a madman. She had not spoken to him. Had not even called him by name. And the resultant crushing disappointment, the doubt of her loyalty, the conviction that she'd forgotten him, embraces, promises, had completely broken him.
Now that he had, through Mathews, a plausible explanation for her incredible attitude, her awful behavior, he was beginning to see the equal, a different, check the situation had born to her, and so he must adjust himself. But he couldn't see her tonight. He'd less, watched, he felt that his world, even his dull, listless world of the past years, was turned inside down. And too great a sudden joy, followed immediately by devastating disappointment, terror and doubt, had completely unsettled his never-too-steady nerves. Tomorrow, then—
And for the first time in his life he began to look ahead to tomorrow, not with confident, secure happiness, of course, yet with a measure of happiness. At least he would see her, touch her hand and hear her voice; at least, whatever had been lost to him, she was restored to him, she was under his roof.

A very short time ago, Richard Cromwell was an unknown aspirant for motion picture work. Now he is in the full glare of the spotlight. It all happened because he was selected for the important stellar and title role in the all-talking version of "Tolable David" Joseph Hergeshumer's prize story. The film is coming to the Grand Theatre on Sunday.
The facts behind the signing of Cromwell read like fiction. For weeks Columbia Pictures had been searching for a "Tolable David." One hundred and seventy-two tests had been made in order to secure the ideal person for this part. Ambitious "extras" and established stars alike had sought to secure the coveted role. Richard Cromwell, an art student, without any motion picture experience but with tremendous ambition, applied in the usual way, having heard of the opportunity Columbia offered.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Marion Davies is starred in "Five and Ten," a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, which will open Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.
This film is of particular interest because it affords the star new latitude for her talents, supplying her with more dramatic vehicle than the light comedies in which she recently appeared. Miss Davies' characterization in the new production is a striking one, demanding emotional intensity as well as the comedy flair for which she is famed.

Any member of the family of Miss Mary McCrady, S. Court-st. is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

Tubercular Tendencies In Infancy

A Number of Conditions May Predispose to This Infection, with the Hereditary Factor Important.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D., U. S. Senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It used to be believed that tuberculosis in infancy was a rare occurrence. Recent observations show that this disease is really quite prevalent in infant and young children.
Of course children are subject to many conditions which predispose to this infection. It is really remains under all the commoner cases of tuberculosis are not reported.
The hereditary factor is important. Children born of tubercular parents possess physical traits which make them liable to this disease. Where the mother has tuberculosis the danger is even greater than if the child is born of a tubercular mother. It is for this reason that a tubercular mother is advised not to nurse her child.
Children who have been brought up in crowded homes and under unsanitary conditions are extremely susceptible to this disease. This is particularly true in crowded city tenements and city institutions.
Fragile children who are inclined to all the common childhood ailments face the dangers of tuberculosis. Certain infectious diseases, such as measles, whooping cough and influenza may leave the child in a condition to contract tuberculosis.
The most frequent way in which young children contract tuberculosis is by intimate contact with persons who have the disease. Many individuals are unaware of the fact that they are harboring the germs. Some believe they have been cured and still others are careless.
Such persons should not be allowed to play with children. Above all they should never kiss infants. The custom of kissing children is an unhealthy one and should be discouraged.
Sneezing should never be tolerated in any home. Dried sputum containing the germs of tuberculosis soon becomes a part of the dust of the room. The child either inhales this dust or conveys it to the mouth by his hands or toys.
It is absolutely imperative that hygienic measures be practiced at all times. These rules should be closely observed when there are children in the household.
As persons grow older they build up a certain defensive mechanism against disease. Unless intimately exposed to tuberculosis the disease is rarely contracted.
Unfortunately, infants and children do not possess this mechanism. Yet tuberculosis in infants can be cured, by hygienic surroundings, plenty of fresh air and sunlight and nourishing food. All these are enemies of tuberculosis.

Economy's Plea Shows Results

COLUMBUS, O.—Response to Governor George White's admonition to department heads to effect month-by-month reductions in state expenditures is reflected in a report of disbursements for June just compiled by Howard L. Bevis, state finance director.

Bevis announces that expenses paid out of the general revenue fund in June 1931 under the preceding administration amounted to $3,420,163.71. For June 1931 the total of such disbursements was $3,193,252.51. This represents a decrease of $226,911.20 for the month.

Like progress must continue to be shown as the administration proceeds, the governor has told his directors in emphasizing the financial conditions to which he called attention in his recent message in which he vetoed items totaling $164,977 which the legislature had authorized in the $65,773,830 appropriations bill.

At the direction of the governor, Bevis issued a letter to all departments requiring that expenses for 1931 be reduced at least 7 per cent. This order is expected to bring about a saving of $2,080,000 this year in controllable expenses.

While commending the general assembly for efforts it made in accord with his warnings that expenses must be trimmed, the governor informed the legislators and taxpayers:

"Notwithstanding the fact that the general assembly did produce a greatly reduced budget, it failed to bring the total of the appropriations bill down to a point where it can be covered by the estimated income of the state, the estimated deficit being approximately $7,000,000. This deficit results from the fact that the legislature did not go as far as it might have gone in seeking sources to provide adequate tax revenues. We inherited a deficit of $4,500,000 which was not included in the present budget. It will be the policy of this administration to meet the situation and live within its income so far as that can be done without curtailing activities indispensable to the public welfare.

"During the experimental period which must necessarily follow the adoption of a new tax system, local subdivisions of government as well as the state, are bound to pass through a season of financial stress. As chief executive of the state, I must admonish them, as I have state officials, of the imperative need for the strictest economy."

Assurances of co-operation from contractors have been obtained by Governor White and O. W. Merrell, state highway director, in their determination to force payment of adequate wages for labor employed on state roads.

Noting that some contractors had taken advantage of depression to beat down the prices for which labor could be hired and compel workers to accept wages that "shocked the conscience," as the governor expressed it, he instructed Director Merrell to defeat this practice.

As a result, Merrell called a conference of reputable contractors to devise a remedy. They agreed to work with him in enforcing strictly the law introduced in the present assembly by W. T. Roberts, Democrat, of Belmont-co, which becomes effective this month.

Under this act the highway director is empowered to provide in road contract that contractors must pay employees a fair wage equal to the standards prevailing in the neighborhood in which work is to be done.

The immediate effect was an agreement that 45 cents an hour is a fair wage in Hamilton and Lucas-co; 50 cents in Cuyahoga-co; 40 cents in Franklin and Montgomery counties and 35 cents or more in other counties, according to local conditions.

"In these times when unemployment conditions are acute and men are eager to make sacrifices to obtain work it is a despicable thing to take advantage of their distress to increase profits," the Governor asserted. "We shall do everything in our power to see that a fair share of the money expended by the state on public contracts is paid to the workers rightfully earning it. No one will be permitted to cheat the employee out of a portion of his wage."

THE NASHUA (N. H.) TELEGRAPH, SAYS:

"Free wheeling may be all right for automobiles and pleasure, but no business can be maintained at a successful pace with the advertising clutch disengaged."

"For more than thirty years in this community I have never known a firm to fail that had used newspaper advertising consistently and intelligently. I have noted many failures directly traceable to a business policy that excluded newspaper advertising."

"People read the home town newspaper both for the news and the advertising. Both must be interesting. The well-balanced home town newspaper has been, and will continue to be, the most important development factor to the home town merchant."

"FISH ARE FREQUENTLY CAUGHT BY OCCASIONALLY DRAGGING A LINE THROUGH THE WATER, BUT THE BEST STRINGS INVARIABLY COME TO THE LURES OF THE CONSISTENT AND PERSISTENT ANGLER. BY THE SAME TOKEN, BUSINESS SUCCESS COMES MORE QUICKLY AND IN LARGER VOLUME TO THE MERCHANT WHO ADOPTS A LIBERAL NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING POLICY, STOCKS THE GOODS THE PUBLIC WILL BUY AND FOLLOWS THE GOLDEN RULE OF TRUTH IN ADVERTISING."

If his story at the golden gates was as convincing as his yarns about the African "gold coast," the late Trader Horn is safely in Heaven.

CAMPAIGN IN OHIO CITIES ON

Number of Cities to Elect Mayors, Councilmen; Politicians at Work

COLUMBUS O., July 18.—Ohio's political campaign is on and from Lake Erie to the Ohio river the state's political leaders are marshaling their forces for a test at the hands of their electorates.

Although activity this summer is restricted to the selection of nominees for municipal, village and township officials, aside from members of county, city, village and rural school boards, the battles are no less important to the high moguls of the state's political warfare. To them the results of the local elections will be the battle plan for the coming big election.

City officials to be nominated at the regular primary election August 11, include mayors, members of city commissions, councilmen, school board members, municipal court judges and clerks. Voters in villages will nominate candidates for mayor, village clerk, treasurer, council and marshal. Some villages will fill coming vacancies on local boards of public affairs. Terms of these village officers expire December 31.

Township trustees and clerks as well as justices of the peace will be elected in various townships throughout the state at the regular election, November 4, and will take office New Year's Day.

SEN. ACKERMAN PLANS TO ACT

Beaten by Assembly in Effort to Obtain Referendum, Now Plans New Attack

CLEVELAND, O., July 18.—Beaten in his attempt to crush the prohibition amendment when the state legislature refused to consider his demands seriously, State Senator Joseph N. Ackerman, the fiery Cleveland Republican, is planning an attack of a far wider scope on the objectionable statute.

The senator has abandoned plans for forcing the wet-dry issue to a vote this year but will be back stronger than ever, attempting to obtain a referendum in 1932, he told International News Service.

Reports in the state capital that he had definitely given up the attempt to get enough signatures for petitions to force a referendum were denied by Ackerman. "The rumor," he said, "is perfectly absurd."

Old petitions were discarded and new ones, calling for the repeal of all laws and acts pertaining to prohibition, in addition to the constitutional amendment, will be circulated in the near future, the senator said.

His original plan of bringing the question before the voters at the 1931 elections in November was altered, he said, because of lack of time to prepare for the campaign.

The form of the new petitions already has been approved by Attorney General Gilbert Betman, and copies are now being printed.

Little ballyhoo will accompany the campaign for 292,000 signatures, Ackerman said. Wherever possible the petitions will be handed out quietly and without much publicity.

Departing from the usual method in obtaining signatures, the senator said the petitions will be distributed by volunteers. Ackerman declared he is bitterly opposed to the "petition racket" in which those who carry the petitions are paid. Ackerman said his campaign will be carried out under the sponsorship of the Association Against the State Prohibition Amendment.
